JUNE

SAN DIEGO CHAPTER MONTHLY NEWSLETTER

2012

President's Message

I look forward to seeing you all at the June General Membership meeting, Wednesday the 20th at 7pm. This will be your last opportunity to attend during the 2nd quarter. A few members were fined last quarter for not attending, ($150) be aware this rule is being enforced.

Also, I hope to have a quorum (a majority of members) present so we can vote on an important issue. The board has voted to increase the chapters' monthly SPEC donation from $200 to $300. SPEC really stepped up and represented our industry interests by lobbying to defeat 2 recent bills that would have directly affected the way we do business. Please give this some consideration and I hope to have your support to ratify this worthwhile expenditure.

Lastly, please take a moment to check out the Skimmer. We are efforting to make it even more informative. Paul Grimes laid an outstanding foundation and Secretary Matt Sweeney is taking it to the next level. Look for the continuing education listings on page (5) and the launch of our latest mentoring vehicle, "Ask The All Stars "(pg5).We have assembled a panel of experts in a wide range of fields that have agreed to take on your questions at the meetings or via their listed contact information.

By networking our knowledge we strengthen the San Diego Chapter and bolster the IPSSA brand. Slap on some sunscreen!
Mike Anderson.

Prospective Members

John Silcox reports there are no new members at this time.

Blue Cards Due on or before July 18 General Meeting

Please send or give your completed, legible Blue Cards to Paul Grimes. Your options:

- Mail via US Postal Service to
San Diego Chapter
IPSSA
PO Box 600862, SD, CA
92160-0862
Must be postmarked on or before July. 18, 2012

OR

- Bring to June or July meetings and hand to Paul Grimes.

Failure to submit a Blue Card as listed above will result in a $50 fine.

Submitting Illegible or incomplete Blue cards is also a $50 fine.

One in Ten - Amen!

"A lot of customers came to the bar. If one out of ten enjoyed the place and said he'd come again, that was enough. If one out of ten was a repeat customer, the business would survive. To put it the other way, it didn't matter if nine out of ten didn't like my bar. This realization lifted a weight off my shoulders.

"Still, I had to make sure that the one person who did like the place REALLY liked it. In order to make sure he did, I had to make my philosophy and stance clear-cut, and patiently maintain that stance no matter what."

So writes Haruki Murakami, one of my favorite novelists, about what he learned owning a jazz club in Tokyo for ten years.

A few things follow from his brilliant insight:

- * Don't be bland. Take a stand. Help folks understand what they'll experience differently doing business with you.
- * Let the 90 percent drift away. Serve your 10 percent to the best of your ability.
- * When you hear criticism about what you're not, smile.

Paddling into the record books

~ Tom Pfingsten

They're calling it the World's Largest Swimming Lesson, and when it comes to the James Stone Pool on Thursday, June 14, officials are hoping for dozens of local paddlers to help boost the event into the Guinness Book of World Records.

Ashley Nijinski, a pools manager for the Escondido Parks and Recreation Department, said on Monday that the free morning lesson is part of a worldwide effort to spread the word about pool safety.

"Drowning is the leading cause of accidental death for children 4 and under, so it's definitely an issue," said Nijinski, adding that Escondido hosts other events, like "April Pools Day," to educate families about the dangers of young children and backyard watering holes. "Part of the reason aquatics is such a big deal for (the city) is because we want to get the message out there."

She said last year's "Largest Swimming Lesson" drew about 20,000 participants, and that organizers have planned the event to happen simultaneously around the world. On the East Coast, for example, it will start at 11 a.m., while in North County, the swimming starts at 8 a.m.

"That way, everyone's doing it at the exact same time, and everyone has the exact same lesson plan," she said. "The goal is to beat last year's (event), so it looks like they're hoping to have 30,000."

The James Stone Pool is at 131 Woodward Ave., and Nijinski said check-in begins at 7:30 a.m. on the day of the event.

Can Balanced Water "Attack" Pool Plaster?

The fact that "plaster dust" forms in newly plastered swimming pools when filled with balanced tap water is evidence that balanced pool water can "attack" (meaning "is aggressive to") and dissolve certain cement compounds from a pool plaster surface.

Even "scale forming" water, with a Langelier Saturation Index (LSI) as high as +0.5 to +1.0, can attack (dissolve) soluble calcium hydroxide and calcium sulfate, which comprises about 20 percent of a plaster mix. Calcium chloride, an accelerant, generally added to the mix by the plasterers, is actually the most soluble compound of all and is readily dissolved by balanced water. Therefore, let's understand that 0.0 (balanced) and slightly positive LSI water, is "aggressive" to those cement components of fresh plaster.

It is calcium hydroxide dissolved from a new plaster surface that is converted into "plaster dust." After a couple weeks, the surface becomes carbonated (i.e., remaining calcium hydroxide is chemically converted to calcium carbonate), and the general dissolution of calcium hydroxide in the plaster surface stops. (The above issue is why onBalance promotes the "Bicarb" [high alkalinity] start-up method for new plaster pools. It prevents the dissolution of calcium hydroxide and the formation of plaster dust by effecting the hydroxide-to-carbonate conversion immediately and in-surface).

Of course, balanced pool water is not aggressive to, and does not dissolve calcium carbonate, calcium silicates, and calcium aluminates which comprise about 80 percent of new pool plaster. The important thing to understand is that the LSI predicts solubility and precipitation of calcium carbonate only, not calcium hydroxide.

Even calcium nodules (efflorescence) that form on cracks and delamination sites are evidence that balanced water can leach soluble compounds from within pool plaster.

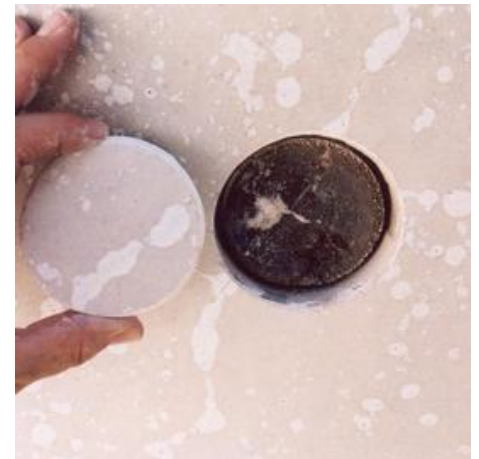

When severe micro-cracking or localized areas of weak, porous, and deteriorating soft spots on plaster surfaces (due to improper plastering practices), allow pool water to penetrate behind the carbonated surface of cured plaster, even properly maintained and balanced pool water will begin to "attack" or dissolve away more soluble cement compounds that are still present sub-surface. This creates increased porosity in those specific areas of a plaster surface, which then eventually causes the plaster in that areas to turn whiter in color in comparison to the larger smooth dense areas surrounding the white porous spots, highlighted cracks or streaks.

White soft spots or streaks are sometimes claimed to be "spot etching" or "etching deterioration" by plasterers, and only occurs when the water has been aggressive. The truth is that the severe combination of adding calcium chloride to the mix, excessive amounts of water while troweling, and late hard troweling by the plasterers, is what leads to "spot etching" and a defective plaster surface.

Also, if the water has indeed been maintained in an aggressive condition, then the spotting will definitely appear much sooner, because aggressive water will dissolve the soluble cement compounds in those defective areas far quicker than balanced water would. But that doesn't mean the aggressive water caused the defect – it merely exploited a defect faster. In that case, there will also be evidence that the dense plaster surface surrounding the spots has been etched. Absent that, it wasn't aggressive water that contributed to the white soft spotting problem.

The simple empirical evidence that aggressive water doesn't cause white spotting is demonstrated by the fact that acid washes (the most aggressive treatment of all) and "zero" alkalinity (no-drain acid wash) treatments don't result in white spotting on good quality plaster. And of course, spotting has been observed in balanced pools with no evidence of etching anywhere.
